

8.28 If a loop exists, then any message sent from node a to node b in the loop will lead to a pending message from node b to the next node in the loop, and so on. Thus, every time a pending message is sent, another pending message is generated, and there will always be at least one pending message in the loop.

© Abhimanyu Jain